

Dear all,

We are thrilled to share some exciting news and updates:

ETH Zurich joins SSPH+ Network

We are delighted to announce that ETH Zurich has joined the SSPH+ Network as a partner! With this addition, SSPH+ now includes 14 universities, encompassing 40+ disciplines in public health sciences and representing a vibrant network of over 260 Faculty members. Together, we continue to strengthen our commitment to advancing public health research and education. Welcome ETH Zurich!

Warm welcome to Dr. Maša Davidović

We are pleased to welcome Dr. Maša Davidović to the SSPH+ Directorate Office as Project Manager. With a strong background in public health sciences, a PhD from the University of Bern obtained through the SSPH+ Global PhD Fellowship Program in Public Health Sciences (GlobalP3HS), and valuable experience gained working at the Swiss Tropical and Public Health Institute (Swiss TPH), the Institute of Social and Preventive Medicine (ISPM), and the Berner Institut für Hausarztmedizin (BIHAM) at the University of Bern, she brings a wealth of expertise to our team. Welcome Maša!

Frontiers Planet Prize: Papers Selected for Consideration

We proudly announce that the following papers, written by SSPH+ Faculty members, have been selected for further consideration for the prestigious Frontiers Planet Prize 2025. This recognition underscores the impactful work being done in public health and sustainability.

- Prof. Jakob Zinsstag (Swiss TPH) et al. for the paper, “One Health in human-environment systems: Linking health and the sustainable use of natural resources.”
- Prof. Nicolas Ray (University of Geneva) et al. for the paper, “Estimating the Carbon Footprint of Healthcare in the Canton of Geneva and Reduction Scenarios for 2030 and 2040.”

The above articles have been submitted to the Planet Prize Grand Jury. The jury will select one National Champion per participating country and award three international prizes. National
